- A. No.
- 19 O. So I would like to ask you about your employment at Mallinckrodt, and recognizing that it covers 1976 to 2013, it's a broad time period, so I'll understand if you don't remember the details, particularly from the earlier time.

But can you generally walk me

And then when did you go to O. production and inventory, roughly what year?

I would say '77. Α.

Q. Okay. And I'm sorry, go ahead.

You were saying something about, I think it was a bulk business?

- Yes, the bulk business that A. Mallinckrodt had there. I was a production and inventory control planner. 10
 - And what did that entail? I'm not familiar with that term.
- 12 It entailed planning the production of inventory for material that was to be sold. Based upon inventory levels, we would -- we would plan the raw materials that needed to be brought in and then the production schedules for the production of the material.
 - And so you're talking about raw Q. materials that would be, I guess, turned into pharmaceuticals?
 - A. This is not pharmaceuticals at that time. I was not in the pharmaceutical -- I was in the specialty chemical business, which was for raw through the different positions that you've held since starting at Mallinckrodt?

Sure, I'll try. A.

As I said, in 1976 I was hired as a replacement for -- in customer service.

It was a business that no longer is with 7 Mallinckrodt.

And I eventually was hired full time, and after about a year, that business moved to Paris, Kentucky, and I stayed in 11 St. Louis and got a position in the production and inventory control area in our bulk business.

14 Q. Okay. And if I could pause you 15 there.

So when were you hired full time, roughly what year?

- It was in '76. A.
- And you were initially hired O. into customer service for a business that subsequently moved?
 - A. Right.
- 23 A business line that 24 subsequently moved?
 - Right.

1 materials that went into food -- food -- foods and industrial applications. This was all down in our St. Louis plant. And this was a raw material; it was not a finished 5 good.

And so is it fair to say that your job was to make sure that you had sufficient amounts of the raw materials to make the needed amounts of the finished 10 goods?

A. That was part of it, yes, to make sure that the raw materials were scheduled to be brought in on time so when we were scheduling the run for making the product that we wanted to make was there in time.

Okay. And how long did you continue with those responsibilities?

I did that from approximately -- well, I was a planner for several years, and then I became a supervisor over four or five planners, and I was in that position until '91, and then I went to work in customer service as a manager.

And was that still related to

- Okay. A. And I reported into the sales for the -- for the bulk area.
- And what is -- what is the specialty chemical group?
- Well, like I said, the specialty chemical group is for raw materials ¹⁵ for us to produce finished good, raw materials for, say, food applications. We sold raw materials to Anheuser Busch. We sold industrial chemicals, but they were all 19 raw material and then they would further take our raw material and combine it with their raw materials to make finished good or whatever application they were using it for.
- 23 And none of these raw materials related to the manufacture of opioids; is 25 that fair?

¹ continued to be a raw material. That was considered our finished good.

- Q. Okay.
- A. And was sold in bulk quantities, hundred -- hundred kilos or hundred pounds at a time.
- So I just want to make sure that I've got the timing correct.

So in '91 you became a manager and -- you became a manager of the acetaminophen customer service group, the specialty chemical group and the bulk narcotic group; is that correct?

- Α. That's correct.
- 15 O. And did you -- did you later go on other positions, or did you stay in that position?
- 18 A. Yes, I had that position until approximately the fall of 2008, and then I took over customer service for the dosage 21 business.
 - Q. And can you describe for me what the dosage business is?
 - The dosage business is when you take raw material products, opiate products,

Page 23

- That was another group. That was our -- that was our bulk narcotic group.
- Q. Okay. And what -- can you define for me, what is a bulk -- or what is a bulk narcotic group?
- A bulk narcotic is a -- a raw material that we produce from opiate and the raw material is then sold to another manufacturer who adds chemical -- other chemicals to that -- our raw material to make a finished product. Pills, powder, tablets.

We did not make a finished good, product, in the bulk area.

- And the pills and powders and tablets, that would later be sold to, for example, distributors?
- A. Yes, from the manufacturers that we sold to.
- And when you say that you did not make a finished good or a product, that's 21 with respect to the bulk narcotics; is that 22 correct?
- 23 Correct. And when I say "finished good," in your terms, it was not in a tablet form or whatever. It was a -- and combine them with other chemicals to make a finished good in the tablet or powder form.

Page 25

- So when you say you take raw material products, this was Mallinckrodt raw material products and making them into opioid products?
 - A. Yes.
- And these opioid products would subsequently be shipped out to Mallinckrodt's customers; is that correct?
- Yes. Our distributor customers Α. and that, yes.
- And you held this position from 2008 until you retired in 2012 -- or I'm sorry, 2013?
 - A. Correct.
- 17 Who was your predecessor in 18 this position -- I'm sorry, in this position?
 - Cathy Stewart. A.
- I know if I -- if I could go 20 back to the -- the bulk narcotics business 22 for a second.
 - A. Yes.
- 24 Do you recall who the O. manufacturers were who purchased bulk

- What training did you receive 4 Q. for your -- for that position?
- 6 Training was mostly done by the previous customer service rep or manager, Cathy Stewart.
- 9 Q. And do you recall what she did 10 to train you?
 - We just went over the processes that the CSRs and that had to -- what was needed as far as orders, forms needed from the customers before we could ship orders out, who their customers were, the product line, that type of thing.
 - And when you say "who their customers were," were you -- are you referring to Mallinckrodt's direct customers or the customers of your customer?
 - Mallinckrodt's direct customers.
- 23 And when you say "product Q. 24 line," what are you referring to?
 - This -- the products that we office on a monthly basis.

I'm sorry.

And roughly what time frame was this process in effect for?

Probably 2000 -- and I'm guessing because I don't remember exactly when we started, when they requested this.

But I would say probably 2003, '4 to 2006 or '7.

- Q. And I take it the process then changed in 2006 or '7?
 - Α. That's -- that's correct.
- O. Okay. And what was that different process then?
- We started working on a more enhanced suspicious order program at the request of our compliance group to automate it so we were capturing information on orders at the time of -- the order was entered. It was based upon a lot more detail than what we had previously been supplying the DEA. The DEA was in the process of changing what they wanted to see and what they wanted to see their customers, I'll call them, or the registrants, what they wanted from them, from sold in the finished good form. We're talking about hydrocodone, oxycodone, codeine, those type of products.

- And are you referring to Mallinckrodt's generic products?
 - A. Yes.
- 7 Q. Okay. Would the product lines you're responsible for also include
- 9 Mallinckrodt's branded products?
 - A. Yes.
- 11 Q. Now, are you familiar with the 12 term "suspicious order monitoring"? 13
 - Yes, I am. A.
- 14 Q. What does that term mean to you?
- 15 16 It was a process -- well, 17 depends on what time frame we're talking about. When I was in the bulk business as a 19 customer service manager, when we first developed the suspicious order monitoring program requested by our St. Louis DEA, it ²² was a monthly report that we sent to them showing orders that were out of the ordinary as far as quantity or frequency, that type of a report. It was sent to our DEA field the registrants, and it became more complex than what we had previously.

- Q. And so I guess for simplicity's sake, I will refer to the earlier suspicious order monitoring program as the pre-2007 program, and then the enhanced one is either the enhanced SOM or the post-2007; does that make sense?
 - A. That's fine.
- 10 Okay. So for the pre-2007 SOM Q. program, how did you identify the suspicious 12 orders?

13 A. It was -- the system -- it was put into our order entry system and it was based upon a log rhythm {sic} that we had come up with and designed and was approved by the DEA field office based upon the average order quantity. And I believe it was 2 X was 19 the quantity that would flag an order on our

- system -- 2 X meaning two times the normal order pattern that the customer placed. And
- it was a -- a running total. So it wasn't
- 23 just based upon a year. It was based upon
- 24 the previous 12 rolling months. 25
 - And so just so I understand

Page 38 Page 40 ¹ sort of mathematically how this works, are 1 And when you say it "had to you essentially looking at the average over match," what does that mean? the past 12 months and then seeing if the new A.  - For medical purposes. For the control -- what I consider medical use is that the pills -- or the product that we sold to other manufacturers who made a finished good, intended use was for pain relief, okay, and for people that were suffering from long-term illness that needed pain relief, cancer patients, surgery, people that had surgery, that's what the intended use of the opiates that we sold were for.

Are you talking about the doctor is not appropriately prescribing it, or what -- what do you mean by "not being used for intended use"?

- I guess that that would be part of it, yes, that the doctor is prescribing maybe more than what the patient needs or product is being brought over from other countries, that type of thing. It's not for its intended use as a medical need, I guess.
- So the fact that a patient is taking an opioid pursuant to a prescription doesn't necessarily mean that the patient is not abusing opioids; is that fair?

THE WITNESS: No, not that I remember. Everybody -- everybody was doing what they could in making sure that we were meeting the needs of the -- meeting the DEA compliance needs.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

And did you understand diversion to be an issue of corporate concern someone that's worked for Mallinckrodt from 1976 to 2013 and spent the past -- well, the past 12-plus years in their business.

A. Well, I would say if they weren't using it for its intended use as a medicinal pain reliever, then I guess it could be abused. And if they abused it, they could be -- become medically dependent on it.

And so diversion, one of the consequences of diversion, could be abuse and addiction; is that fair?

A. Correct.

O. Did you ever have any concerns about diversion while you were working for Mallinckrodt?

It was always a concern that we have the proper tools in place to keep that from happening, and I felt that we did with 19 the regulations that we filed -- that were 20 given to us by the DEA as far as needing the 222 forms, in the bulk side, the quota forms. ²² Also we had the necessary data collection 23 that the DEA asked us to submit to them, which went from the monthly letters to a more sophisticated reporting system. Later on as for Mallinckrodt?

A. I believe it was a corporate concern, and that's one of the reasons why our controls were so -- so tight.

And when you say your "controls were so tight," what controls are you talking about? Could you list them for me?

Well, what I mean by that is what we've discussed already is that we were meeting the compliance of the DEA regulations with requiring the quota letters and the 222 forms, which were required, also the letter that we -- and bulk, also on dosage, that we were asked to submit on a monthly basis early on. And then as the regulations -- or as the DEA tightened their regulations and asked us to submit more than just the letters and actually end the letters and to come up with a more robust -- more robust suspicious order monitoring program, we did that going forward.

I always felt that Mallinckrodt was a -- felt that it was very important as a citizen -- I'm calling Mallinckrodt as a citizen -- to adhere and meet the needs of what the DEA was requiring over and beyond anything. That was kind of our corporate goal, I guess I would say.

MR. TSAI: Dean, we've been going about an hour.

MR. KAWAMOTO: Sure, why don't we take -- why don't we take a ten-minute break.

- Q. So you went to dosage products, and she went to bulk narcotics.
 - A. That's correct.
 - Q. Why did you switch?
- A. Our boss at the time, George Saffold, wanted us to switch to learn more about the other areas.

regulations that, like, Karen Harper in the compliance group would be.

But from what I remember, the quota system was important in -- for the DEA to keep track of what was being used in the United States. So like I had mentioned earlier, the DEA would take all the quota, all the -- all the quota letters and forms and the 222 forms that were used -- and I'm not only talking, you know, from the distributors but also from the pharmacists and everyone else that had to report to the DEA what they were using during the year -they would take that, add it all up and see what the total was for United States for a particular product. And they would use that for their base for what they were going to allow the following year. So that's why the reporting through the quota system was very, 20 very important.

- Q. And you had indicated that the compliance with the quota system was an element of Mallinckrodt's efforts to fight diversion; is that fair?
 - A. Well, I wouldn't say it was

- Q. And "the other areas" meaning he wanted you to learn more about dosage products and her to learn more about bulk narcotics?
 - A. That's correct, right.
- Q. Did George have any concerns about Cathy's stewardship of the dosage products?
 - A. No.

MR. TSAI: Object to the form. QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

- Q. Okay. And would you view your switch in 2008 as a promotion for you?
 - A. No, it was a lateral.
- Q. Now, do you recall our prior discussion regarding the quota system?
 - A. Yes.
- Q. Okay. And so I want to focus now on bulk narcotics with respect to the quota system.
- Well, I guess why are quotas important?
- A. Quotas are important -- and again, I'm speaking as a customer service person. I'm not, you know, privy to all the that. You know, it was to meet the regulations that were given to us by the DEA.

Page 61

As a good citizen, Mallinckrodt being a good citizen, we felt it was very important that we follow the regulations in that to keep something like diversion from happening.

- Q. And so what are -- what are all of the steps -- focusing now on the bulk narcotics side, what are all of the steps that Mallinckrodt took to ensure that the quota system was being complied with?
- A. We would -- we would require from our customers, along with their order, to send us a quota form under their license, whether they're a manufacturer or a researcher or whatever license they had, they had to send us a quota form, and we would not use -- we could not ship that order until that form was sent to us. And what we would do with the quota form is then turn that into our compliance group.
- Q. And did the -- did the quota form indicate their overall quota for the year?

- A. No, usually it was the amount that they were ordering. It couldn't be more than what was on the order.
- Q. And so how -- how would Mallinckrodt know that this order -- that the order -- that the newest order your customer had submitted didn't exceed their quota for
- the year?
 A. It would show the total, I believe, if I'm -- and I'm trying to remember. I think it would show the total, but then it would also show what they're using for that particular order.
 - Q. And when you say "total," I'm sorry, what total are you referring to?
 - A. You're asking what -- how we knew what the customer's total was?
 - Q. My apologies. So let me rephrase that question.

- A. That they were ordering from us.
 - Q. Okay. Understood. But I guess

¹ Mallinckrodt, or was that all orders?

- A. It would be all orders.
- Q. Okay. So if Manufacturer A were ordering, you know, bulk product from

Mallinckrodt and three other manufacturers,

- ⁶ the quota form is going to show the total
- amount they had received from all of those other manufacturers?
 - A. Yes.
 - Q. And did Mallinckrodt take any steps to ensure that those numbers were accurate?
 - A. Customer service wasn't responsible for that, so we would turn in the forms to our -- to compliance groups, so that would be for them to determine that. They reported through their system, which was the ARCOS system, which I'm not that familiar with, but that's how they reported what the manufacturer or our customers had taken from us or sold to them from us.
 - Q. And ARCOS would tell you how much -- ARCOS would give you the amount of product that the manufacturer had obtained from Mallinckrodt.

....

- my question may be a little different.
- So let's say the DEA gives Manufacturer A a quota of a hundred kilograms?
 - A. Uh-huh.
- Q. And Mallinckrodt -- and they submit an order to Mallinckrodt asking to purchase 3 kilograms.
 - A. Okay.
 - Q. How does Mallinckrodt know that -- whether that 3-kilogram order is going to exceed their hundred-kilogram quota?
 - A. It would show the total and then what had been used so far, from what I remember.
 - Q. So your recollection is that the quota form is going to show their overall quota, so a hundred kilograms?
 - A. Right.
- Q. Plus the amount that they had ordered up -- so the total amount they had ordered thus far for the year?

 A. I believe so, from what I
 - A. I believe so, from what I remember.
 - Q. And was that just orders for

Would it also provide you with the information as to how much they had obtained from everyone else?

A. I would to refer you to Karen Harper on that.

- Q. And going over to the dosage side, what was the system in place on the dosage side to ensure that the quota system was being complied with?
- A. The customer had to give us a 222 form that matched the order quantity that they were ordering, and that 222 form would then sent -- be sent to our compliance person, and they would gather all that -- those compliance forms, I believe, on a monthly basis and send them to the DEA.

But, again, that's the compliance group, and I would refer you to them for more information.

- Q. And did the 222 form also contain the total quota assigned to that distributor?
 - A. No, I don't believe it did, from what I remember. It was just for that particular order.

Page 66 Page 68 1 So I guess going back to my being abused; is that fair? Q. 2 2 question from the bulk side. A. Correct. 3 3 A. Uh-huh. O. Are you familiar with the term "Ms"? 4 Q. I've heard of them, but I don't 11 It submits a 222 form to 11 know specifically what they are. O. 12 12 Okay. Are you familiar -- are Mallinckrodt asking to buy ten pills. 13 you familiar with any terms or any references How does Mallinckrodt know that 14 those ten pills don't exceed the hundred-pill 14 to Mallinckrodt products with respect to quota? 15 being street drugs? 16 16 A. No. A. We probably wouldn't, but 17 remember that the DEA is issuing the 222 O. So given that Mallinckrodt form, so they -- as we turn in -- or we and products were being diverted and they were whoever else they're buying from -- the 222 being abused, are there any additional steps, forms back to the DEA, the DEA would give looking back in hindsight, that you feel Mallinckrodt should have taken? 21 them new 222 forms based upon what was left. 21 22 22 Q. - And so it was very important to you that Mallinckrodt meet these DEA requirements?
- I would say it's probably the most important thing that we did.
- And this view was widely shared at the company; is that correct?
 - Yes, it was.

I will add that when we were developing our suspicious order program, that that was rolled out to our marketing people and also our sales force on what our requirements were and what their part would be going forward in helping us on -- on controlling any -- any possible suspicious orders or peculiar orders as we -- it became known as later on.

- How did you know that your suspicious order monitoring program was effective?
- A. We did not have one suspicious order while I was doing the job.
 - And when you say you did not O.

particular product that the order was for,

- and I would ask them if they knew why all of
- a sudden we were having a peculiar order from that customer.

5 And a peculiar order, again, would be unusual quantity from what they have bought in the past over a period of time based upon the log rhythms {sic} we set in place in our computer system.

If they didn't know, my next step would be going to the salesperson and asking them.

- And so when you say that you didn't have any suspicious orders, though, what do you mean -- what do you mean by that?
- A. Suspicious order is one that would be -- where there is possible -- where we could not identify for whatever -- what reason the customer was ordering more than what they had in the past. That would become a suspicious order. And we report that to Karen Harper and her group, who would then report it to the DEA.
- And so I just want to make sure I understand what your testimony is.

have one suspicious order while you were doing the job, what do you mean by that?

Well, just to talk a little bit about the suspicious order program that we developed, an order would be flagged every day -- an order could be flagged on a daily basis as being suspicious or peculiar, as we called it, and what that is, is just a stage that we went through.

If an order was flagged as being peculiar, it was during my time, my job or responsibility to talk to marketing or our customer service reps, who would be the first people that I would talk to because they were in tuned to our customers and what their order needs were, and they would know if there was anything unusual as far as a distributor picking up a new customer that they hadn't had before that they would now need increased material to supply.

And if our CSR did not have a -- an answer to why the customer was ordering more, I would go to the product manager, or business manager, whatever they were being called at the time, who had that

Are you saying that because none of your customers ever submitted a suspicious order to you, that your suspicious order monitoring program was effective? MR. TSAI: Object to the form.

THE WITNESS: I'm saying that during the time that I was running the program and working the program that we did not have a suspicious order.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

- And when you say you "did not have a suspicious order," that means that you didn't identify any orders that were suspicious?
- A. We identified orders that were peculiar, but we could explain them and did not go to the point of being a suspicious order.
- And I guess my question is, I Q. mean, you've indicated that you could explain all of your peculiar orders.

How do you know that -- that your explanations were, in fact, correct?

From the bulk side, which is where I was at this time, this was where we started, from what I remember. Our St. Louis field office did not want to receive the monthly report any longer. Okay.

And we were instructed -- Karen Harper and Michael Pheney and some other folks put together a team of people to come up with a more robust suspicious order monitoring program, which included myself, ¹³ Cathy. Karen Harper oversaw it, but she ¹⁴ didn't come to all the meetings. We had a 15 few IT people that was involved, to come up with a more robust ordering -- suspicious order monitoring program that would identify orders as being peculiar as the orders came through.

This was developed over time period of like 2000 -- in the 2000-2008 time period and put in place.

- 23 And this -- I guess you would Q. 24 call -- words, this was a floor, not a ceiling?

Correct. A.

Okay. But it was -- it was Ο. critically important to Mallinckrodt that its enhanced SOM program meet, at a minimum, the requirements in this letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And so directing your attention to page 2, it says, "Registrants that rely on rigid formulas to define whether an order is suspicious may be failing to detect suspicious orders. For example, a system that identifies orders as suspicious 14 only if the total amount of a controlled substance ordered during one month exceeds the amount ordered the previous month by a certain percentage or more is insufficient."

And so what is your understanding of what that requirement is?

Well, I think what they're saying is that it shouldn't be based on just what the previous month was -- what -- what previous month order might have been. Okay.

They're saying is that they want you to take a look at an ongoing -- what for that -- this kind of got the motion -wheels in motion for getting that done.

So I take it -- and that's what I think you previously referred to as your enhanced suspicious order monitoring --

A. Correct.

Q. -- program, your enhanced SOM program?

Α.

And you would agree with me O. that that enhanced program was required to meet all of the requirements set forth in this letter, would you not?

Not only what was in this letter -- keep in mind the DEA did not tell us what should be in our program. They never -- they didn't tell us whether it was correct. They didn't want to see a program. They just told us that, "These are some of the things that we wanted to see in your program."

We did this stuff and included some other things that they thought were important.

Q. Okay. So this -- in other Page 101

Page 100

I'll call a floating month period, like I described earlier to you, a rolling time period. So it wasn't from calendar year. It was like January to January, February to February, so it kept moving depending on -so if you were in April, it was looking at orders that were placed from March to March, 8 okay.

Now, it also says that "Registrants that rely on rigid formulas to define whether an order is suspicious may be failing to detect suspicious orders."

That's exactly what I'm trying to describe to you right there. They're not saying don't look at what they ordered just the previous month. Look at what they've done over the previous 12 months or -- and in our case, we said, okay, we're going to look at a 12-month roving {sic} period of time.

Okay. Doesn't this also tell you though that if all you're doing is relying on a rigid formula, on a numeric formula, that is also insufficient?

MR. TSAI: Object to the form. THE WITNESS: Yeah, and that's Again, I go back to this is something that we were not -- we didn't have the tools to do at that time.

- Well, but you would agree that this is a circumstance that might be indicative of diversion, would you not?
 - I suppose it could be, yes.
- And given that and given that this is -- I mean, the DEA is flagging this as an issue that they are concerned about, wouldn't it be important for Mallinckrodt's suspicious order monitoring program, particularly its enhanced SOM program, to take this into account?
- 19 We were -- as far as 20 pharmacies, we were selling to chain 21 pharmacies and we were shipping to -- to 22 their shipping sites, not particular 23 pharmacies. Okay. Not individual pharmacies. We were selling to their 25 warehouses.

Now, I guess to use the Mallinckrodt terminology, I should be substituting in "peculiar orders"; is that fair?

- 9 Q. Okay. So registrants that routinely -- or, you know, registrants that routinely report peculiar orders yet fill those orders without first determining that order is not being diverted into other than legitimate, scientific and industrial channels may be failing to maintain effective controls against diversion. 17

You would agree with that statement?

- Yes. A.
- Okay. So as part of O. Mallinckrodt's suspicious order monitoring program --
 - Yes. A.
- Q. -- it had to make sure that it did not report -- it did not identify

Page 107

But if a chain -- if a chain pharmacy is only ordering Schedule II substances from you, isn't that something that your program ought to have taken into account and registered?

A. If we had the resources to do so, I suppose so.

MR. TSAI: Dean, this is a time check. It's been about an hour since the last break.

MR. KAWAMOTO: Sure. Actually, why don't I finish up on Exhibit 4 and then we can take a quick break.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

- So page 2 of Exhibit 4, that's the 2007 DEA letter.
 - Page -- okay. A.
- 18 Q. Page 2.
- 19 Of 4? A.
- 20

Yes. 21 It says, "Lastly registrants that routinely report suspicious orders yet fill these orders without first determining 23 24 that order is not being diverted into other than legitimate, medical, scientific and peculiar orders and yet fill those orders without first determining that the order was not being diverted; is that correct?

- Are you talking about -- at this time period or are you talking during when? Are we talking about bulk, or are we talking about dosage? 8
 - Well, let's focus on dosage Q. products.
 - Okay. A.
 - Q. And for dosage products --
 - A.
 - -- prior to 2007, it would have O. been improper for Mallinckrodt to identify a peculiar order and fill that order without first determining that the order was not being diverted into other than legitimate, medical, scientific and industrial channels; is that correct?
 - A. Yes.
 - Okay. And presumably in the Q. post-2007 time period under your enhanced suspicious order monitoring program, it still would have been improper to fill an order without first investigating the order; is

Page 110 that correct? A. Yes. 2 MR. TSAI: Object to the form. 0. So with respect to both bulk 3 THE WITNESS: Keep it in mind, and dosage products, now, with respect to 4 both pre-2007 and post-2007, it would have like I've mentioned before, prior to 5 2007, we were -- we were instructed by been improper for Mallinckrodt to ship an 6 our field offices at that time, our order without first concluding an 7 DEA field offices, that the monthly investigation -- well, strike that. 8 report that we gave them was It would have been improper for 9 sufficient. Mallinckrodt to ship a peculiar order without 10 OUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO: first concluding its investigation as to 11 Okay. But nevertheless, from whether that order was not going to be 12 12 a -- from a standpoint of -diverted: is that accurate? 13 13 MR. TSAI: Object to the form. From a -- from -- as far as --14 14 I can only speak towards bulk because that's THE WITNESS: I would say that 15 what I had at the time. Okay. when I had dosage at the time, that we 16 So besides the program that we 16 had an agreement with Karen Harper had in place, which was what the DEA required that we didn't always have the time at that time, regardless of what this letter because orders would go out on a daily 19 is saying, we were also monitoring our basis from when they were -- they were 20 customers of any orders that we felt -- our entered, and they -- if an order ²¹ CSRs would notify myself or Karen Harper 21 kicked out as peculiar, we didn't 22 that, "Hey, we've got an order that's more --22 always have the ability to do the 23 ²³ more than what the customer normally buys," thorough investigation prior to the ²⁴ and we would -- we identify that and turn it 24 order being shipped. And the 9 10 time frame that we needed our -- was anywhere 10 11 11 from seven days to a month. Secondly, we would go to the business manager for that product. If that business manager didn't know why there was an unusual order being placed, we would then go to the salesperson. This all took time because these people aren't always available to get back to us. Okay.

And we felt comfortable enough through our -- through this program being in place for several months

- Well, I think that's what they're -- they're saying here. For example, a system that identifies orders as suspicious only if the total amount of controlled substance ordered during one month exceeds the amount ordered the previous month.
 - Q. Okay. And so --
- A. That -- that I interpret as being rigid.
- Q. And so it would be improper to just look at one month, but if you were to look at the past two months, that would be okay; is that your interpretation?
 - A. No. No.

Well, what I'm saying is -what we -- what we did is we looked at a 12-month roving {sic} period of time, as I explained earlier, where we not only looked at the previous month and the month before that and six months before that, but a year's basis.

So if they placed an order, for example, in April, okay, what we looked at were orders that had been placed from, say,

17

And if I'm reading here, it says, okay, "should not rely on rigid formulas to define whether an order is suspicious or not," and they give, for example, a system that defines -- identifies orders as suspicious only in a total amount of the controlled substance ordered during one month.

- Q. Well, let me -- go ahead.
- Do I understand what A. you're asking?
- Well, let me phrase this O. another way.

So you have three potential options. Option one is you would have -- you would base your SOM system on just look --21 just comparing the current order to the previous month's order, and your 23 understanding is that the DEA disapproved of that approach. 25

A. They show that as an example.

March of that year, the month before, through the past March of the previous year.

And so -- and that -- then that just kept changing. If an order was placed in May, we would look from April through April.

- Q. Okay.
- Does that make sense? A.
- 9 I believe I understand that. Q.
- 10 Okay. A.
 - I guess my question is so Q. your -- your understanding of what it means not to rely on a rigid formula is that your formula shouldn't be time limited, essentially, to one month.

Is that -- is that what you're indicating?

A. I think that's what my -- our interpretation is what the DEA is saying there. Don't just look at one -- what they bought the previous month because that's not going to give you a good feel for an order pattern that is deviant from possibly past orders.

> Q. And what is your basis for that

Page 120

- The other approach would be, you know, what you did -- what Mallinckrodt did, which is to compare the current order to the average of the past 12 months on a rolling basis; is that accurate?
 - A. Correct. Correct.
- O. Another approach would be in addition to looking at, you know -- in addition to comparing the current order to the prior 12-month order on a rolling basis, you could also look at other factors. For 12 example, the factors identified in the 2006 13 letter.

So, you know, what are -- what are they ordering relative -- how much -- or how much opioids are they ordering relative to other products?

18 Is there -- is there a pattern 19 with respect to, you know, how often that they are -- they are providing an order that 21 would, for example, trigger the peculiar 22 order threshold?

Are they ordering excessive quantities of controlled substances in combination with, you know, an excessive Page 122 quantities of lifestyle drugs? So you could have a suspicious order monitoring program that had both this formula in addition to other factors.

Well, keep in mind --MR. TSAI: Object to the form. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Keep in mind that as the bulk customer service rep at that time, what the DEA -- our field office was requiring is what we were supplying. We gave them what -- what we had as our criteria, which I just told you it was based upon a 12-month rolling average. They approved that and we had that system in place up until 2007, 2008, at which time they said that was no longer going to be valid. And that's when we started developing our enhanced program.

So regardless of what they have here, what our requirements were at the time was was what I just told you.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

And do you know -- is this the O.

¹ was a particular size, like a 25-tablet bottle versus a 50-tablet bottle, they each would be separate SKUs. So just not looking at the orders for those particular ones. If they were within what we called the same family, we would look at the total of that family.

Page 124

So what we wanted to make sure as far as diversion is that to keep somebody from trying to get something by us is to one month order the 50-tab bottle and then the next month order the hundred-tab bottle. So we were looking at the combined of that family, combination of that family, and that would be flagged.

Irregular order patterns was added, which I think is talked about in here.

A number of different things.

Okay. And so if I understand your testimony, this formula, which was based on looking, comparing, the current order to the prior 12-month rolling period, that formula, was changed after 2007 when you took over the role of dosage products?

A. Yes.

O. Okay. And what was -- what was 15 the change or how was it changed?

What was our new program?

Yes. Q.

18 Okay. I don't remember all of the particulars, but -- because it's been a 19 20 long period of time.

several other people, it was based upon not 23 only the order quantity on a rolling average,

With the input of Cathy and it was based upon not -- not only on a particular SKU, what I'll call a SKU, which

Page 125 So ordering 50 tablet bottles from one family and then ordering a hundred tablet bottles from another family --

A. No, from the same family.

5 Okay.

Q. Okav.

So let's say hydrocodone, example, let's say they came in sized bottles of 50 tablets or a hundred tablets, okay, but they all came from the same crude, okay, or what we would call family, all right.

So if somebody came in and ordered 100 one month, then came back the next month and ordered 50, the computer system would keep track of that and look at it at the higher level of where that was coming from in the crude. It would look at the total combination or combined of those orders.

So it was essentially looking Q. at the number of -- it was taking into account the number of pills in the dosage --

- 8 Q. Did this team have any central 9 files?
- 10 A. I don't remember. 11

Most of the teams -- in this --

12 I don't see -- let's see. 13

Everybody was given assignments on what was needed to be done and we work on our assignments and meet on a frequent basis to see where we were as far as coming up with the new suspicious order reporting system.

- O. And who was the team leader?
- 19 A. I believe it was Karen.
- 20 So she would have been the one giving out assignments and making sure that they were completed; is that correct?
 - Well, she wouldn't give out assignments. During the meeting, we would all talk about what we wanted to see, and

Page 131

- 1 And so the person that would have been responsible for making sure that the suspicious order monitoring program complied with the DEA requirements was Karen
- 6 A. She would be the -- yes.
 - And so she would have been the Q. one that spoke to the DEA about this program?
- 9 She probably tried -- yeah, she 10 would notify them, but the DEA did not say one way or the other whether they liked it or they didn't approve it or disapprove it.
- They -- they stayed out of that.
- 14 Q. Okay.

Harper?

- 15 As far as I remember. A.
- 16 Now, did --O.
- 17 They didn't recommend a program and didn't say whether -- or approve programs 18 19 as far as I know.
- 20 But if they had concerns, they 21 would let Mallinckrodt know, wouldn't they? 22
 - Oh, yes. Yes. A.
- 23 Q. Did this team have team
- 24 meetings?

25

Yes.

based upon what person was involved in that particular area, they would go back and work on that.

Say for IT, we asked them to take a look at -- "IT" meaning information services or computer people, okay -- we would ask them to see, you know, can this be implemented into the system, so they would go back and do their due diligence on whether 10 that can be done.

Cathy and I would be -- would take a look at, you know, what was possible on our end to get done.

So everybody was given assignments and then we would come back and talk about what we had come up with or done.

And so -- well, strike that. Do you know when this team was 19 first formed?

20 Not the exact time frame. This 21 was probably June of 2008. Probably earlier in that time frame since we kind of details out a little bit what we're going to be looking at. Probably early 2008, maybe late

- 3 No, this was just to roll out 4 our new order monitoring system. What --I -- I had control -- I had part of the suspicious order monitoring program until
- fall of 2010. Then it was turned over to another group.

- As far as being the one that A. would follow up on peculiar orders and that.
- And in fall of 2010, do you 12 know who it was turned over to? 13
- 14 Tiffany -- I don't see her name 15 here. I do not remember her last name.
- 16 And was she in a different O. 17 group?
- 18 She was. A.
- 19 What group was she in? Q.
- I believe chargebacks. 20 A.
- So if you turn to the next 21 Q. 22 page, page 4, it says, "DEA policy on
- suspicious orders." 23 24 A. Okay.
 - And one of the bullet points Q.

good feel who our customers were. We dealt

- with them for years. And there wasn't that
- many distributors in that that were -- or
- drug manufacturers at that time. So we had a
- pretty good idea of what their order patterns were and that.

And so if we felt something was unusual or whatever, we would bring that up to the business manager for the product and/or the salesperson.

- And when did you become -- when did you -- when were you placed in charge of the dosage products?
 - Α. 2008.
- Q. 2008.
 - So --
- 17 A. Fall of 2008, I believe.
- So would have been after this O. 19 presentation, but --
 - Yes. A.
 - A couple months after? Q.
- 22 A. Yes.
- 23 And so with respect to this O.
- bullet point and your responsibilities on the dosage side of Mallinckrodt's business, what

- is, "Registrant is reminded that the responsibility does not end merely with the
- filing of suspicious order report."
 - A. Correct.
 - Q. What does that mean to you?
- 6 That's referring to the report A. 7 that we were sending on a monthly basis.
 - And so what are your additional responsibilities other than filing -- well, strike that.

What are the responsibilities you have after filing your suspicious order report?

14 A. Well, not only after filing it, but during the interim, remember this was a month-to-month report that we filed and it 17 was at the end of the month. So during a 18 month our -- our responsibilities were to 19 continue to look at the orders independent of a report to see if there was unusual order 21 activity or -- or unusual orders being placed that were out of the norm for that particular 23 customer.

24 As I talked about earlier this morning, on the bulk side, our CSRs had a additional responsibilities did you have other than filing the suspicious order report?

- A. On the bulk side?
 - Q. No, on the dosage side.
- Oh, at that time I did not have A. any responsibilities. I'm sorry.
- Well, this -- you've got a bullet point here that says, "Registrant is reminded that their responsibility does not end merely with the filing of suspicious order report."
- This is Cathy -- this would be A. Cathy Stewart's responsibility.
 - Understood.

But this requirement would also have applied to you when you took over the dosage side of the business, correct?

- After our -- after our new reporting system was put in place.
- 21 So what additional responsibilities -- after the new reporting 23 system gets put in place --24
 - Okay. A.
 - Q. -- what additional

We no longer file that report. Our new monitoring system took the place of that. The DEA didn't -- no longer wanted us to send that report.

So during the time period of 2000 -- late 2008 and 2009, we worked on our -- and this is discussed in this presentation -- this team that was put together worked on coming up with a new report.

My responsibilities after it was put in place was to receive the daily reports, peculiar order reports, that flagged the orders that were out of the log rhythms {sic} of the normal order patterning. Okav.

And my job, which I think I kind of discussed earlier, was to -- the 20 orders that were flagged was to then talk to the CSRs, the business managers, and the sales force that were involved with this particular customer that we were selling to and trying to explain why the order pattern was not being followed or why this was an unusual or peculiar order.

Q. And so -- well, so when did this enhanced SOM policy become effective?

A. I believe it was in the fall of 2009 is when we put it in place. This was after -- after months of working on what we wanted to see in the report. This is after we tested -- put it in a test mode and ran it parallel with our order entry system to see if there was anything kicking out that 12 shouldn't been, and then we put it in what I call live production.

- And so prior to 2009, what policy and procedures were in place regarding dosage products?
- So just our normal due diligence of the DEA requirements of making sure that we had the 222 forms prior to the order being shipped. All orders were placed on hold prior to that form being received. So that was our policy.
- And you -- did you have any policy or process in place to identify suspicious dosage orders between the fall

¹ of 2008 and the fall of 2009?

A. As I discussed, just our normal DEA compliance with the 222 forms and that. We were working on the process.

Other than the CSRs bringing up a suspicious order based upon their knowledge, we did not have a -- a suspicious order program in place at that time as we developed it. 10

Q. So in -- let's say we're talking January of 2009 here.

A. Okav.

Q. A manufacturer -- I'm sorry, a distributor for the dosage products submits an order that is, say, more than two times what it requested the prior month, that would not have been flagged for further review or investigation?

If the CSR noticed that it was a larger order than normal based upon past history, which we had on our computer, they would bring it to the attention of -- of the salesperson or the business manager for approval to ship it.

And was there a threshold that O.

Page 141

¹ was being applied, or how was the CSR to know that this was an unusual, large order?

Just from past order history that was on the sales -- on the computer.

And so any order that was larger than the past sales history, or did it have to be larger by a certain amount?

There wasn't a formal program in process. As this -- as this suspicious order thing points out, we were in the process of coming up with a new program, so from that standpoint, we didn't have a -- a computer system that was doing it. It was just informal.

So I just want to make sure I O. understand the chronology here.

So prior to 2008, for the dosage products, what was the formula that was applied to determine if there were -- if an order was suspicious or not?

A. Prior to 2008, to my -- best of my knowledge, because I was in the bulk area, they were reporting the best -- or the same way that I was, which was a monthly report.

And that is they would look at

Page 142 the current month's report -- I'm sorry, they 2 would look at the current order and compare 3 it to the prior month? 4 A. Rolling 12 months. 5 5 On a rolling 12-month basis. O. Α. 6 And what was the threshold that Q. 7 would trigger it being viewed as suspicious? 8 The average of that 12-month. A. 9 Two times that. correct? 10 10 Two times that. O. 11 Okay. So prior to 2008, on the 11 12 12 dosage -- sorry. 13 13 Let me -- let me qualify that. 14 I was not over that program at 14 15 the time. I was not in dosage, but I believe 16 that's what they were using, but I can't say 17 for sure. That question should be asked of 18 Cathy Stewart. 19 19 Q. Understood. 20 20 But to the best of your 21 21 knowledge, prior to 2008, the formula that 22 22 was in place regarding dosage products was 23 that you looked at the current order and compared it to the 12-month rolling average, 24 and if that order was more than two times the Page 143 1 12-month rolling average, that would be 2 2 flagged as a peculiar order? 3 3 I'm assuming that's what they A. 4 4 were doing. 5 5 Okay. Q. 6 6 A. That's what we did on the bulk 7 7 side. 8 8 And then in 2000 -- late 2008, Q. 9 9 when you assumed control of the dosage 10 10 products --11 11 Uh-huh. After the -- after the A. 12 12 program was -- the new --13 13 After the program was --Q. 14 14 A. Was put in place. 15 15 -- was put in place, but before O. 16 16 the new formula was developed, you didn't 17 17 have a formula in place at all? 18 18 A. Correct. 19 19 So you just got rid of the --O. 20 you no longer looked at the comparison 21 between the current order and the 12-month 21

¹ had asked -- had asked you to discontinue sending them the report. But did they also tell you that you didn't need to look at that data anymore? I don't remember. But nevertheless, that -- that formula was discontinued, and until fall of 2009, nothing replaced it; is that MR. TSAI: Object to the form. THE WITNESS: That's correct. OUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO: So between the fall of 2008 and the fall of 2009, your regulatory system was -- well, strike that. And keep in mind, we were -- we were shipping to distributors who also had requirements on having programs in place. We were not shipping to the -- the end users. There was many layers of other players in this -- in this -- I shouldn't say players, but other people or companies that were involved in the suspicious order process besides Mallinckrodt.

So to say, yes, we did not have a program in place at the time. The DEA was well aware that we did not have a suspicious order program in place. O. Did you ever interact with the credit department to determine if there was a basis for the order?

This is referring to new customer accounts, okay. So the order would never -- there would never be an order placed unless the credit department established them as a -- as a new customer. Okay. So that would be preliminary work to me ever receiving an order.

And was there any effort made to update this information?

There was a yearly -- there was a yearly form that was sent out by the credit department from what I can remember, that they had to -- it was a checklist that they had to fill out and send back to the credit 19 department to keep their account current, and it had questions concerning the compliance that we were doing for the suspicious order monitoring program.

This wasn't something new that was developed. I can't speak to what was all involved, but there was a yearly report or checklist that was sent out to the customer and they had to fill it out and send it back to them to keep them current as the customer.

Okay. And this was -- this was all being -- this was being done in connection with --

A. Our enhanced reporting system and suspicious order reporting.

Okay. But credit didn't have any role in reviewing individual orders?

Α. No.

Q. Okay. Now, the next section is on field sales.

And by "field sales," I assume we're referring to the -- the salespeople in the field?

18 Okay. It says, "Completes site Q. 19 survey checklist for new controlled substance customers," and then "conducts an on-site 21 visit, including taking photographs inside and out for review by security director and 23 DEA compliance manager."

> Uh-huh. A.

> > Q. Do you know what the purpose of the on-site visit and the photographs were?

The reason for that is take a look at the physical property itself to see if it looked like a legitimate business. They didn't want it to be running out of somebody's house or whatever, so it had to be like, you know, physically have to look like on what they -- what we -- they would feel is important.

Everybody had their own program, okay. We didn't have any guidelines from the DEA on what our program should look like.

So as far as what the other companies or distributors did as far as their program, I don't -- I can't answer that.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

Well, I understand that you -sorry.

A. Well, to answer that, you're asking me would I feel that that would be something that they would want to do?

Q. Yes.

I would say yes. A.

Now, for the customer service O. representatives, they break this up into bulk narcotics and dosage customer service reps.

Do you see that?

I do. A.

And so you would have been O. responsible for the dosage customer service

- Q. And so was this --
- A. That was in place while we were developing our program, and also as -- as we
- went on, our program would kick out these
- orders, so the CSRs still had the chance, as
- they were placing the order, to say, "Hey,
- something's wrong here," and bring it to the attention of the customer service manager or
- 9 the DEA compliance officer, but we also had
- our program in place that would flag orders that were considered peculiar.
- Q. And that program in place to
- flag orders, that was what was activated in the fall of 2009?
 - A. That's correct.
 - Q. So with respect to the ability of the CSR to identify orders that they think are peculiar, were there standards they were supposed to apply in that respect?
 - A. Just -- just orders that
- were -- seemed out of place to them.
 - Q. Okay.
- A. As far as I remember.
- Q. And how many different CSRs did you have?

A. I think there were five.

- O So you have five CSDs
- Q. So you have five CSRs.

A. Right.

And they were -- they were responsible for particular customers.

- Q. Okay. And the CSRs were part of the sales team, were they not?
- A. No. They reported into logistics.
 - Q. Yeah.

And so how were the CSRs compensated?

- A. They weren't under the bonus program. They just had a salary.
- Q. So they didn't have a bonus program; it was just a salary?
 - A. Yes.
- Q. Okay. And in terms of the factors that a CSR was to consider in determining whether an order was peculiar, was there a list of factors?
 - A. I'm sorry, say that again.
 - Q. Let me rephrase that question.
 So as I understand it, the CSR had the ability to flag an order that he or

Page 168

- she believed was peculiar or unusual; is thatfair?
 - A. For that customer, yes.
 - Q. Okay. And in terms of assessing whether an order was peculiar or unusual, was there a set of -- was there a written standard that they were supposed to apply or a set of factors they were supposed to look to?
 - A. Just past order history for that customer, and then they would talk to --bring it to my attention or to the business manager and ask them if they knew why this particular order was different from what their normal order pattern was, and then if -- go ahead.
 - Q. And in terms of past order history, what we're talking about is just looking at whatever -- whatever they had -- whatever they had ordered previously?
 - A. Correct.
 - Q. And was there any threshold that was applied in terms of, you know, an order X percentage above the prior history would be viewed as peculiar, or was it really Page 170 Page 172 left up to the CSR? 1 by the DEA? 2 A. I don't remember, to be honest If they did -- and I don't want with you, what -- what we gave them as 3 to say I remember that any particular one parameters, whether it was an X factor or if was, but I believe that there was, but I it's just based upon their -- their knowledge couldn't tell you who it was, and if it was the DEA would notify us and then we would no and the order history during this time period while we were developing our suspicious order longer sell to them. But I can't say yes or no for sure that there was a -- a distributor program. 9 And did you have any program in who was -- had their license suspended. 10 10 place to audit the CSRs to make sure that Q. So I think I've said three things already that the other -- that the original report that we sent to the DEA on a monthly basis did not have.

And I don't think this is the final version. It had even more.

Q. And in terms of how this formula was -- well, strike that.

How was this formula applied to Mallinckrodt orders?

A. Okay. So this was -- this was put in in our order entry system, and on a -- on a daily basis all orders were compared to the log rhythms {sic} that we had set in place for our customers and orders.

If there was anything that did not fit the normal order pattern or what we would consider the normal order pattern based upon our guidelines and what we had put in place, it would flag that order and a report would print out that I looked at on a daily

Another example is if it was, say, they hadn't ordered for two or three

3 months and then all of a sudden we received a

⁴ large order from a customer, that would be

⁵ considered an irregular order pattern. Okay.

That would kick out on this report.

Again, I -- I talk about the 8 API. If their total API for an order was 9 greater than whatever the criteria was for that, it would kick out.

Those were reasons for the order to kick out on the report.

Q. And where -- was this formula written down somewhere?

A. I believe what we put into the computer was probably written down somewhere.
 I don't remember exactly.

This was given to our information services people that were on the team and it was put into their systems, so it was probably -- it was documented by them.

Q. Okay. And did you work with anyone in particular in the information services team?

A. I believe it was on the -- basis.

And it would show me the orders that had been flagged as peculiar. And as discussed earlier, I would take -- is that what you're looking for?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay.

Q. And how would it -- how would -- how would the program tell whether an order did not fit the normal order pattern?

A Based upon these formulas that

A. Based upon these formulas that were put into the system.

Q. But what -- I mean, what specifically was this formula supposed to take into account? What specifically was the formula looking for in determining what a normal order pattern was and what a deviation from that was?

A. If it was -- if it didn't meet the criteria of the formulas that -- that we had put in place as far as -- for example, twice the orders in a rolling 12-month period, it would kick out. That's just one example. Okay.

So they were -- they were part of the team and they were brought in when we came -- came to a point where we were ready to give them some -- give them information that we wanted implemented into the computer system, and we would have to write up a document spelling out exactly what it was that we wanted to be put into the system.

Q. And did you write up this document, or did someone else write it?

Everybody on the team was -had input on what they felt, and that was part of the -- the team that was put together 13 to work on what we felt should be in the -in the order entry -- what we should put in the order entry system or this suspicious order program.

So Cathy Stewart, Sue Marlatt was probably involved in it, myself, Karen Harper, and, like I said, IT would probably have -- would have had somebody in there at the point where we would need them as far as advising us what was possible.

And then we would write up the document that we wanted to have put into the system and submit that to IT for

- their -- their gradual increase of orders rather than jumping from 100 to 200 would trigger the 2 X formula versus if they gradually increase from 100 to 125 to 150 to
- 175 would not trigger that -- that to kick 6 out.
- O. In other words, it would be possible over time to actually have a significant increase in the monthly order that wouldn't be triggered by the algorithm; 11 is that fair?
 - A. Right. And I think that's what Cathy is pointing out --
 - Okay. Q.
 - -- is that they could get A. around it that way. So we were trying to work on a system that everything that we possibly could think of of getting around placing an order that we didn't feel it was legitimate, we were trying to think of everything possible.
- 22 And so how was this concern Q. addressed? 23
 - I don't remember. I think it A. was addressed, but I don't remember exactly

Page 208

- But -- but you're not aware O. of -- you're not aware of what fix, if any, was applied to address this concern?
 - A. No.

MR. KAWAMOTO: Okay. So why don't we take a break now.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

- So if we could return to the document that you were just looking at, I believe it is Exhibit 7.
 - A. Okay.
 - O. Okay?

Now, you had -- we were discussing the gradual increase in orders over time, and you had indicated that's something that Cathy Stewart would be knowledgeable about in the dosage area.

- That's correct. A.
- Q. With respect to the bulk area, which was your area of expertise, wouldn't

- 2 Q. Okay. And so it was possible that it -- was it possible that it wasn't addressed?
 - I think you would have to talk A. to Cathy about that.
 - Okay. Do you know --Q.
 - Like I said, she was working on A. the dosage log rhythms {sic} and I was working on the bulk because that's what we were familiar with.
 - Do you know if anyone else raised a similar concern, namely that you could have gradual increases that over time result in a significant increase that wouldn't be caught?
 - If anybody else --A.
 - Yeah, do you know if this concern was raised by anyone else?
- I'm not sure. It could have been. I mean, the team working on this was ²² looking at all possibilities. They're trying to think of what they could do, somebody -- a customer could do to try and get around the system.

that same problem also apply?

- Yeah, the same problem could apply, yes.
- O. And so how was that addressed in the bulk context?
- A. I don't remember, but I'm sure -- is it in here? We would have put something in based upon the bulk side also. I don't remember exactly what it was.
- Well, how -- how would one fix Q. this problem?
 - A. How would one fix this problem?
- Yes. I mean, hypothetically, how would you fix a problem? I mean, if you have a numeric formula that's based on looking at a current order and then comparing it to sort of prior order history, I mean, how would you -- how would you modify the formula to address that problem?
- It would probably be based upon an average versus looking at -- and I'm just guessing at this point because I don't remember anymore. I'll just leave it at that: I don't remember anymore how we addressed it.

Page 210 Page 212 1 But mathematically speaking, 1 Do you see that? what -- I mean, what would you do? Because, 2 A. Uh-huh. I mean, you're already basing that formula on So how long was the peculiar O. an average, aren't you? order report that you ultimately ended up 5 reviewing after the program went live in fall Correct. Average period of 6 time of ordering. of 2009? 7 Yes. O. A. It varied from day to day. - Q. And what is your basis for saying that it was kicking out orders that shouldn't have been kicked out?
- 9 Well, let me rephrase that. 10 What are examples of orders that were being 11 kicked out that shouldn't have been?
 - Well, right here, I don't remember exactly what this was about, where it says, "The 30-day cumulative algorithm is turned off because that specific trigger was not spelled out in HDMA guidance and has inflated the peculiar order count."

So that's one instance where it was inflating the number of orders that we were looking at.

- 21 And what is the 30-day O. 22 cumulative algorithm? Do you know what that 23 is?
- 24 A. I don't remember.
 - Now, from this entry, it Q.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- when you have it -- when you have it turned on, it is kicking out, you know, some amount of orders. Or I guess to put it more accurately, it's flagging a certain amount of orders as peculiar; is that

- 9 Q. And then when you remove this, when you turn it off, those orders are no 11 longer flagged as peculiar; is that right? 12
 - Α. Correct.
 - Q. Was any analysis ever done to, you know, verify or confirm that those orders were in fact not peculiar?
 - A. I don't remember.
- 17 Q. If that analysis were done, who 18 would have it?
- 19 I'm not sure who would have it Α. 20 at this time.
- 21 Now, as a practical matter, you Q. can't review 150 orders per day, correct? 23
 - That would be difficult. A.
 - Q. And so if you had a program that were -- that was identifying 150 orders,

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

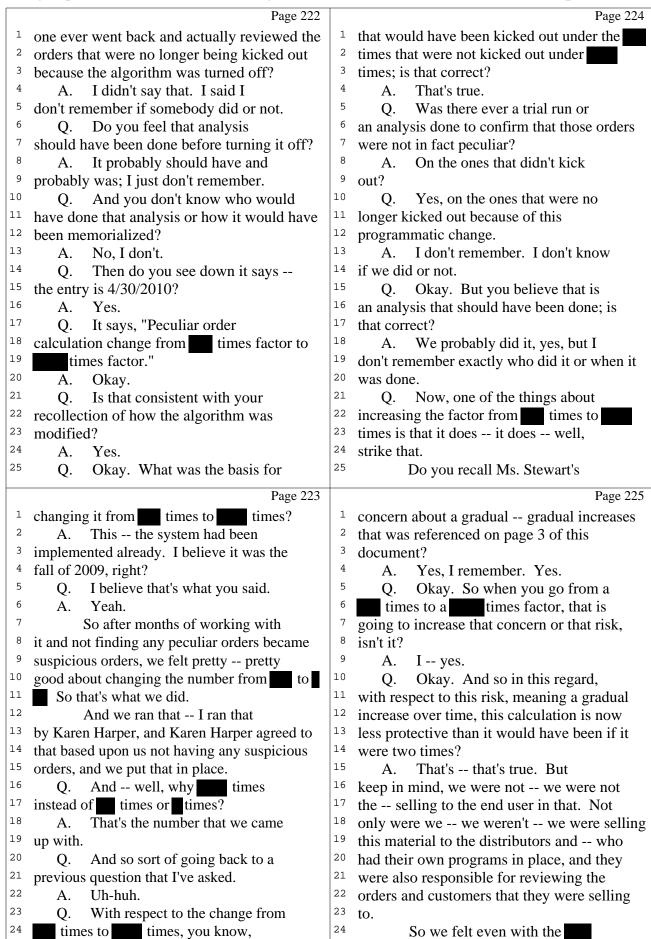

- Okay. Was there any analysis done on the impact of removing the 30-day cumulative algorithm with respect to the orders that were no longer being kicked out?
- Well, as I had mentioned earlier, you know, what we did was we -- we test ran this and massaged it as it went along to see if it was doing the job we wanted it to do as far as looking at the orders based upon what we felt was needed, and it was adjusted as we went along. So that's all I can -- all I can remember.
- Q. So with respect to this 30-day cumulative algorithm -- just as a matter of resources, you would have to tweak that: isn't that correct?

And I think that's what this is showing here, is we were tweaking things that we felt that we could tweak without losing focus of what we intended to do.

And again, we weren't given any guidance on what it should be doing, but we felt we still had a pretty robust system, and just 150 orders were not within our -- our -able to do that at that time. So we felt by changing this we could still maintain a robust system.

- But part of what you were looking at in terms of designing this system was its ability to function given the resources that were assigned to it; is that fair?
- A. I'm not sure if that's fair. We felt we -- we still felt with our end product that we had a good product, and with the resources that we had that we could manage it.
- 24 Well, with respect to, for O. example, this 30-day cumulative algorithm, no

 - A. I can tell you what we did.
 - Okay. What did you do then? O.

13 Okay. So we would get the A. reports, and as I had talked earlier, we had 14 several orders on that report that were flagged as peculiar. And I would go down the line, as I had mentioned earlier, and look at why it was kicking out. There was different 19 flags, reasons, that would be checked on why ²⁰ the order would be flagged. So I would take 21 a look at that. 22

And then I would take a look at reports that I had to my disposal and see if there was anything else that I could see that may be why the order had been flagged that would be okay. Okay? 2

If I could not determine through what I had available to me, then I would go to the CSR, then to the business manager and then to the sales force. And I would send out e-mails to the folks, if I needed to, and document that and attach that to the report. Okay?

And then this was filed in the file folder for the month. I believe it's for the month.

- And the documentation of the order with respect to the information you received from either the CSR or the business manager or the sales force, that consisted of whatever they e-mailed in response to you?
 - Α. Yes.

So there was no formal, Q. separate report or memo that was prepared?

A. No. No.

Q. Do you see the "may"?

A. Yes.

Q. So that indicates that you weren't sure whether they had gotten new 16 business. You thought they may have? 17

That's what Tom Palmer is A. saying, yes.

19 Okay. So do you know if Tom O. took any steps to verify that they in fact 21 had new business?

22 A. I cannot tell that from what he put in this e-mail. 24

Okay. Did you take any steps to verify that they in fact had gotten some

- Q. And you wanted to know why they're increasing their inventory for these two products.
 - A. Okay.
- 11 And her response is that she Q. 12 has been working with Cardinal to increase 13 their inventories.
 - Α. Correct.
 - Q. Okay. Would that have been a sufficient justification to ship this order?
 - A. Yes.
- 18 Okay. Do you know why Kate was O. 19 working with Cardinal to increase their 20 inventories?
 - A. I don't remember, no.
- 22 Q. Okay. Was it -- was it a concern to Mallinckrodt if a distributor was 23 accumulating an excessively large inventory 25 of opioid products?

Page 294

diversion and that as you referred to in -- before, you know, the distributors had their own programs in place for diversion.

Page 296

As you can see from the e-mail, we were -- we were doing our part as far as checking why the order was placed, and in my view, we did our due diligence of reaching out to the business manager. The business manager had asked if -- on our behalf if they would take a larger increase of this product, and as far as I was concerned, that was okay for releasing the order.

OUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

- 17 Do you know if Karen Harper 18 signed off on the desire to have Cardinal increase their inventories?
- 20 I don't know that, no. Α.
- 21 Would this have been a decision O. 22 she should have been involved in?
 - I'm not sure if she should be A. or not.

What's your -- what's your --

MR. TSAI: Object to the form. THE WITNESS: I think what Kate was doing here was that Cardinal -well, I shouldn't -- I shouldn't speculate. I don't know what -- how to answer that.

It would have been a concern, well, our business manager felt that it was appropriate that we reached out to them and asked them for reasons that I can't answer right now, to go ahead -- if they would go ahead and increase their inventories.

QUESTIONS BY MR. KAWAMOTO:

From a diversion control standpoint, though, is it a concern when a distributor starts accumulating a very large inventory of controlled substances?

MS. YOCUM: Objection to form. THE WITNESS: I think we were reaching out to them, so it was okay with us if they went ahead -- if we could ship this to them.

So, again, we are not the -the sole party in this stream of well, okay. Go ahead.

Q. Well, would -- would you agree that it is a concern --

A. I can't -- I can't answer what Kate's thinking was on this or what was going on behind the scenes as far as us asking them to increase their inventories. Maybe they were keeping lower-than-expected inventories.

Maybe -- I don't know. I can't answer for what reasons Kate Muhlenkamp had for asking 11 for this.

Q. Well, I'm not asking for -- I'm not asking for your speculation as to what Kate was thinking.

A. Okay, but you're -- okay, go ahead.

- What I am asking is, from the standpoint of diversion control, is it a concern to have distributors accumulating large inventories of controlled substances?
- 21 A. If they have -- in my viewpoint, if they have the controls in 23 place, it would not -- it would not be a 24 problem. 25
 - Q. And by "controls in place,"

Do you think it was before or after 2010? A. Probably before. Q. Okay. And did you make any changes based on to your job and your job duties based on that information that you received from Karen Harper about Florida? A. Well, I believe, as you can see from the documents that we were reviewing or from what we talked about, that there was a growing concern from the DEA about diversion, and that's part of the reason why we enhanced our our program that we had in place, suspicious order program. Q. Okay. And so you believe that the change in your suspicious order program was because of this information about	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21	people were traveling from other states to Florida for the purpose of obtaining opioids?
